An Appreciation Of The Tree

Forest management, tree growth and harvesting take on new dimension through the remarkable cyclical processes which take from the earth while at the same time creating environmental and economic benefits.

Only solar energy is required for the growth of trees—plus carbon dioxide and other pollutants they absorb from the air.

Every acre of trees, the Southern Forest Products Association points out, supplies enough oxygen to meet the needs of 18 people while making four additional tons of wood, each year.

What is, after all, more beautiful and necessary than a forest of trees and the freshness of the air around them? -W Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times

The Melody Lingers Off

The phone rings. You answer, giving your name. The next sound you hear is the singing of "Happy birthday to you."

Such was the tuneful surprise of the singing telegram. We say "was" because anyone who hasn't had the experience will never have it. Western Union is discontinuing the singing telegram.

It was a novel addition to the ways of brightening anniversaries. Evidently, the novelty did not attract enough paying customers. So the singing telegram, like other goods and services enjoying insufficient demand, passes into the shadows of history. - Miami (Fla.) Herald

Dirty Pool

The U.S. government is playing dirty pool. What one department has proposed and sanctioned for supplementary news services another department is attacking as illegal.

When the Federal Communications Commission agreed to the elimination of special press rates for hourly service by AT&L, the Commission suggested a sharing of the transmission lines which then had to be leased for 24-hour periods. The Department of Justice is now attacking the wire-sharing concept and a joint sales arrangement between two supplemental wire services.

The Justice Department tried to destroy the joint publishing arrangements of news papers in 22 cities. The FCC is currently trying to force newspapers to divest themselves of broadcasting properties. Every time these two government bureaucracies chalk up their cues they try to put the newspaper business behind the eight ball. - Editor & Publisher

RARELY SEEN in Northern Ireland these troubled days, smiles light up the faces of a British soldier and two shoppers whose handbags he must search.

Ministers to Meet on Irish Issue

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath will meet Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish Republic on Monday and Tuesday and will ask him to help stop terrorists of the Irish Republican Army from crossing into Northern Ireland, informed sources said today.

Lynch in turn is expected to ask Heath to do something about British troops crossing the Irish border.

The meeting, announced Wednesday, had been set for October. It was moved up after a British patrol crossed into the republic last week and one of its soldiers was killed. Shots were fired at British soldiers Wednesday from the republic's side of the 260-mile border, but no one was hit.

The British Cabinet was meeting today to go over proposals for discussion at the Lynch-Heath meeting. Some reports said Britain might consider a demand, backed by Lynch, for proportional representation for Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority in the all-Protestant Belfast government.

The plans to meet indicated that Heath and Lynch had cooled down after a furious exchange last week growing out of the killing that followed British internment of suspected IRA leaders in Northern Ireland.

First, Lynch warned Heath against trying to achieve "military solutions" in the British province and promised support for a campaign of nonviolent civil disobedience by Ulster's Roman Catholics if the British didn't change their tactics.

Heath in reply accused Lynch of interfering in "affairs of the United Kingdom" that were none of his business. Lynch retorted it was his government's business because Irishmen were getting shot or imprisoned.

Britain claims terrorists of the outlawed IRA enjoy sanctuary in the republic and use it as a staging area for forays into the north, where thousands of British troops are trying to keep the Roman Cahholics and Protestants apart.

A British soldier was hurt by a nail bomb early today during street fighting in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne area of Belfast. Bombs blasted a labor union office and a meat plant, but no casualties were reported.

British troops in Londonderry came under machine-gun fire from snipers, but no one was hurt.

Honolulu Is Trying Car Pools

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — With 300,000 cars choking its highways and spewing pollutants into its air, Honolulu is trying computerized car pooling in hopes of reducing its rush-hour traffic by 50 per cent or more.

This has been tried on a smaller scale by businesses and individuals elsewhere. But Honolulu wants to have the nation's first citywide and city-run computerized car pooling system.

The plan was announced this week by Mayor Frank F. Fasi and it will begin by pooling 7,000 city employes. At the same time a campaign is planned to get all of Honolulu's work force involved.

A city spokesman said that pooling among city employes alone will take an estimated 1,000 cars from the streets during rush hours.

The procedure is simple: Residents fill out cards, saying where they live and when and where they work.

This information will be fed to the city's computer system, which will match a resident with four others. They then would share the same car.

Grant Seeks Child Custody

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Raquel Welch, 30, has filed a suit for divorce from her press agent—movie producer husband, Patrick A. Curtis, 36.

They were married in Paris in 1967 and separated last March 11.

Curtis, who appeared in "Gone With the Wind" as a child, was a Hollywood press agent when he met Miss Welch. The couple has no children.

Woman's Lib Is Secome

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — In the final dress inspection aboard the Navy tug Koka, the skipper was approached by barefoot, dark-skinned boys wearing lava lavas who tossed a necklace of shells over his head.

Then Lt. (j.g.) Timothy McGarvey saluted Wednesday and turned the tough little 27-year-old ship over to its new skipper, Ma'alona Elisara.

The 144-foot Koka, powerful enough to tow a cruiser, was decommissioned and presented to the territory of American Samoa as a gift of friendship. The U.S. territory in the South Pacific will use the ship for salvage and rescue work.

The Koka—originally named for an Indian village in Arizona—was renamed the "Talitiga," which means "ready for assistance when needed," in Samoan.

Drunk Drug for Problem Drinker

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A problem drinker convicted of drunk driving in Portland may choose a drug treatment for his drinking problem instead of paying a fine or going to jail.

Some 50 persons so convicted are taking daily doses of the drug antabuse, which makes a person ill if he later drinks alcohol.

The treatment is part of a federally financed program aimed at reducing the number of traffic accidents caused by drunk drivers. Another major aspect is stricter enforcement of traffic laws.

The Portland project, which began in February after six months of planning, is one of nine Alcohol Safety Action Projects funded last year by the Department of Transportation. Some 20 more projects were funded this year.

The Portland project works this way:

When a person is convicted of drunk driving, the judge orders a presentence investigation to determine whether the offender is a social or a problem drinker.

Social drinkers are given immediate sentences—fines, jail terms or license suspensions.

Problem drinkers are sent to the Alcohol Safety Action Project clinic, where extensive diagnostic work is performed. The results are sent to the court with a recommendation for sentencing.

If he refuses to go on the treatment program, which is usually a condition of probation, there is no alternative except to refer him back to the court.

Those who agree to the treatment report daily to a participating pharmacy where they drink the drug. The cost, 75 cents a day, is paid by the offender unless he is indigent.

The drug has been used in the treatment of alcoholics since 1946 but an official said, "This is the first time, to my knowledge, that it has been used extensively with a coerced population."

The drug is used in combination with other treatment such as job or marriage counseling.

Charlotte, N.C. Murder Capital of Nation

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — This is a city with a bustling image of industry, progressive growth, enlightened Southern traditions—and more murders per capita than any other in the nation.

An FBI report on crime in the nation shows that Charlotte, surrounding Mecklenburg County and adjacent Union County had 24.7 murders per 100,000 residents in 1970. The area also held the dubious title in 1969 and in 1965 with a slightly lower rate.

The report says that during 1970 101 men, women and children were shot, stabbed or beaten to death in the counties, which had a total population of 409,370.

Police say most of the victims were black and knew their assailants.

Adjacent Union County had only nine of the murder or nonnegligent manslaughter cases.

Charlotte alone accounted for 79, and the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County per capita murder rate was 27.3 for its 350,000 population. Of the 79 cases, police say 78 arrests were made.

There were at least three weekends in which three persons were slain in separate incidents. Two policemen were killed, two service station attendants died in a robbery and a 14-year-old boy who didn't want to be sent back to an orphanage was accused of slaying his foster mother.

Ken L. Miller, assistant Charlotte police chief said, "There is very little we can do to prevent murders. They are crimes of passion which usually are committed in the homes by friends, relatives or acquaintances."

Al Pruitt of the Chamber of Commerce said indications are the average man or woman murdered had a low income and was outside the influence of church or community standards.

"We've got to get better jobs and living conditions," he said.

The chamber does not ignore these crimes in literature about Charlotte, but Pruitt said it points out that organized crime and general lawlessness is not prevalent.

Dr. S.W. Byuarm, chairman of the sociology department at Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte, says the city's murder rate is a statistical freak and does not indicate problems different from other newly urban areas.

Actor Suffers Heart Attack

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Actor Edmond O'Brien, suffering from a "slight pulmonary condition," is "recovering beautifully" at San Bernardino Community Hospital, a hospital spokesman says.

O'Brien, 55, was admitted Tuesday after he complained of chest pains during desert filming of scenes for "The Faith Healer."

The hospital had said he was being treated for a cardiac condition, but his chest pains later were believed to be the result of dust inhalation.

Nixon Says U.S. Must Be First

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's latest speech-making forays around the country have found him arguing that the United States must strive to be "No. 1" in all areas or cease to be a great nation.

"Let it not happen to America," he said.

Nixon struck this theme in two appearances Friday, at the dedication of an Air Force museum near Dayton, Ohio, and in a speech to 40,000 members of the Associated Milk Producers Inc. in Chicago's vast McCormick Place convention hall.

He told the diarymen's organization, the largest farm cooperative in its field, that "America is No. 1 in the world in productivity, in agriculture."

His new economic policies, he said, would bring "a new prosperity for farmers and for all Americans without inflation and without war."

"Let us be No. 1 by seeing that our farmers get their fair share of America's increasing prosperity," he added.

The chief executive had made similar appeals as he visited five states en route to California where he worked and rested for two weeks before returning to Washington early Saturday.

In his various speeches, Nixon also has been calling for individual sacrifices in the battle against inflation and for cooperation with his wage-price freeze.

The Dayton stop, at Wright Patterson Air Force Base, produced presidential tributes to the Air Force, pioneer aviators and the Wright brothers who made their home in Dayton.

Nixon scheduled only one appointment for Saturday, with Chairman Carlos Sanz de Santa Maria of the InterAmerican Committee on the Alliance for Progress.

The President planned to make a midday helicopter flight to his camp David lodge near Thurmont, Md. He will make a Labor Day radio address from there on all major networks at noon EDT Monday.

Ganges Flood Has Million Homeless

CALCUTTA (AP) — Floods from the Ganges River have driven 4 million more Indians from their homes, raising the total made homeless by flood and civil war in West and East Bengal to an estimated 26 million.

Cholera has broken out in many areas. In Katwa, 40 miles north of Calcutta, the disease took five lives Thursday.

In the town of Murshidabad, about 150 miles northest of Calcutta, the water is 7 feet deep in some places.

Officials said 10 million persons are now homeless in the Indian State of West Bengal. Flood waters fed by fresh monsoon rains have covered some 5,000 square miles. The government admits to 68 deaths. Unofficial estimates put the death toll between 600 and 1,000.

Across the border in East Bengal, or East Pakistan, officials estimate that the Ganges has flooded 4,000 square miles, killed more than 70 persons and driven 9 million from their homes. Crop losses there are very heavy, increasing the threat of famine already posed by the civil war in the spring, which sent 7 million refugees streaming into the Indian states of West Bengal, Bihar and Assam.

The flood is the third major disaster to hit Bengal in 10 months. Last November was the devastating cyclone and tidal waves which killed hundreds of thousands of East Bengalis. In March came the civil war, when the army from West Pakistan tried to wipe out the independence movement in the eastern half of the country.

Youth Sentenced to Die Begins to Recall the Good Days

...inside these walls of prison my body may be, but the Lord has set my soul free...
—Johnny Cash, in a song.

By BILL LANCASTER

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP)—At age 15, Joe Newton Kagebien has begun a premature but necessary recollection of the so-called good old days.

His search for the happy times has been difficult, however, and it may not last beyond Oct. 11.

Under the law, Kagebien is a convicted killer. He is a resident of death row in the newly constructed $750,000 maximum security building at Cummins Prison Farm. He was convicted Aug. 7 by an Arkansas County Circuit Court jury of a charge of first-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of Jimmie Wayne Wampler, a Wynne rice farmer.

Kagebien has been sentenced to die in the electric chair on Oct. 11.

Permanent residence for the DeWitt youth is a five-by-nine foot cell, where he reads mysteries, westerns, adventure stories and letters from people throughout the nation urging him to trust in God and his life will be spared.

When he isn't reading, he is sleeping. "It helps pass the time," he says.

Having a permanent residence and a daily routine is unusual for him.

Born Aug. 30, 1955, at Gila County Hospital in Globe, Ariz., Joe Newton Kagebien (nicknamed Joey) has no place to call home. He has been on the move since his first birthday, which his family observed in Queen Creek, Ariz.

He attended kindergarten and the first grade in Superior, Ariz., while his father scratched out a living in the copper and magnesium mining fields and his mother supplemented the income with petty earnings from a cafe she owned.

As a small boy, Joey moved about the country with his family as his father sought ways to improve the family's living standard. In their travels, the Kagebiens lived in Montana, New Mexico, Indiana, Texas, Arizona and California.

His mother and father were divorced and she remarried and moved to Texas. Joey and his father lived together in many different places during the following year until his mother divorced her second husband and remarried Joey's father.

Joey and his parents moved to Arkansas in 1963. A native of DeWitt, Joey's father was familiar with the Delta region and brought his family to the farm country in hopes of making a living off the land.

Joey's father worked for a DeWitt farmer. The family occupied a frame house in the Bayou Meto community southwest of DeWitt. Joey attended school at Southside and Westside Elementary in DeWitt until the fifth grade, when his father decided it was time to pull up stakes and move back to Arizona.

He attended grades six, seven, eight and half of the ninth at Miami, Ariz. During this time, his parents added to the family in the form of a daughter, Tanya, born in 1967.

"I remember being very happy when she was born," the youth recalled. "We used to go for walks and I remember laughing a lot."

Joey, his sister and father returned to DeWitt in 1969. Mrs. Kagebien stayed behind in Arizona due to a respiratory ailment which prevented her return to Arkansas' extreme summer humidity.

While in DeWitt, the Kagebiens stayed with Joey's grandmother, Mrs. Bessie McKennon. Joey enrolled at DeWitt High School and his father got a job on a farm for about $70 or $80 a week, Joey remembers.

Joey enrolled in the 10th grade at the city's high school in the fall of 1970. He had completed two months' school work when his father went back to Arizona to return Tanya to Mrs. Kagebien. Joey stayed behind to live with his grandmother.

It was during this father's absence that Wampler was murdered. Or as Joey puts it: "When all of this happened."

There's a warm spot in the youth's heart for his parents, although he has heard from his mother only once—via letter—since he was charged with murder, imprisoned eight months in a county jail, tried and convicted and sentenced to death. A close friend of the Kagebien family said the family lost all touch with Joey's mother, and in fact, no one had heard from her or Tanya in months.

Joey refuses to discuss his relationship with his mother, except to say that he remembers her as "very pretty." Tears swell in his large, brown eyes when she is mentioned.

The boy has fond memories of his childhood. He enjoyed such things as carnivals, motion pictures, nature hikes, and riding his dad's diesel truck when he worked as truck driver in Indiana.

He says he is God-fearing. A member of the Church of the First Born in DeWitt, he often traveled to distant cities with his grandmother to attend church services. He said he became a Christian at age 8.

"The letters I get from people telling me to trust in God and put my future in his hands, they make me feel good inside," he said.

The boy's experience with girls was limited. He remembers dating some girls in DeWitt and even mentions that he went steady for two months. "I really didn't go with too many girls," he said.

His biggest mistake, he thinks, was made in June of 1970.

"I had a cousin named Edward Shorestein in DeWitt and he and his mom and dad were moving to Virginia and they asked me if I wanted to go with them... but my father said I better stay in DeWitt and stay in school," he said. Wampler was slain five months later.

"But that's over, I guess. I just wish I could go home to my family and live with grandma and be with my dog, Jada."

Wants Action on Trade Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will have to move promptly on trade legislation to clear the way for new international relationships the United States seeks, says House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs. The Louisiana congressman, in an interview, listed a renewal and extension of bargaining authority among the three items that must take priority in the new atmosphere created by President Nixon's sweeping economic proposals.

The others he labeled for urgent attention when Congress reconvenes Sept. 8 are Nixon's tax package—already scheduled for House Ways and Means Committee hearings beginning that day—and the question whether and in what form presidential authority for wage-price controls should be extended.

Nixon, acting under existing authority, has imposed a 10-per-cent extra duty on imports to help reverse a trend which in recent months has resulted in the United States importing more than it exports.

Boggs said he hopes the measure will be seen as a temporary one, adding: "We must consider the possibility that the action could be ruled a violation of GATT (the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade), subjecting us to positive measures.

"Moreover, other countries could realiate—a 10-per-cent levy against us here, a 15-per-cent levy there—and we would find ourselves in a full-fledged trade war."

Attempted Hijack Is Thwarted

MIAMI (AP) — A young Cuban refugee who said he was worried about his mother tried to hijack an airliner to his island home Friday, but the attempt was thwarted when he was overpowered by off-duty crewmen and passengers.

Three Eastern Air Lines officers suffered minor stab wounds during the scuffle when Juan Miguel Borges Guerra was overpowered and trussed with headset wires and pillow cases, the FBI said.

After Guerra was arrested, he reportedly told federal agents that his mother was still in Cuba and that her failing health had left him nervous and worried.

The 20-year-old refugee grabbed stewardess Lana Dahlstrom as the plane neared Miami, put a sharpened screwdriver to her throat and demanded to go to Cuba, agents said.

"I said 'Okay, we'll go to Cuba,' and he said "I'll kill you. I don't care whether I live or die,'" Mrs. Dahlstrom recalled after the incident.

The stewardess said the hijacker told her his family was in Cuba and that "he hated the United States."

"Then he said something about they had killed his parents," she added. "I didn't understand that. I don't know why it was said."

According to Eastern, Guerra boarded the 727 jetliner in Chicago along with 73 other passengers and six crewmen. The flight was bound for St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

While the hijacker held Mrs. Dahlstrom in the forward galley, Capt. Newt Edwards and three off-duty officers who were riding deadhead on the flight walked up to the couple and distracted the man by asking for water.

"We jumped him...Then we all got in it," Edwards said. "Three of us jumped him and the girl broke loose. He was keeping a death grip on the pick and it was very very difficult to take it away from him."

Three passengers also joined the fracas before Guerra was subdued.

Edwards and two other officers suffered minor stab wounds and Mrs. Dahlstrom wrenched her wrist as she escaped.

Guerra told federal agents he had been living in Rockford, Ill., and working on an auto assembly line.

At a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Michael J. Osman, Guerra was placed under $500,000 bond on hijacking charges.

Pentagon Sees Victory on Troop Cut

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon leaders predict victory over other administration forces pressing for a cut in Army divisions below the present 13 1-3, already the smallest number in 10 years.

The main thrust for reducing Army divisions is said to come from Office of Management and Budget officials who reportedly have urged a scale-down to 11 divisions.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird is known to be supporting the Army on this issue. One senior Army general said "we are at rock bottom now" in division strength, considering NATT commitments and the need to be ready for possible emergencies elsewhere.

The final decision will be made by President Nixon before he sends next year's defense budget to Congress, probably in January.

Meanwhile, military planners predict the number of men in the Army will be slashed to between 820,000 and 840,000 in the next budget.

World War I Army nurses in France do their laundry in the field.

Seventy years of compassionate labor is a record to be proud of. It is a record which the Army Nurse Corps celebrates this year and which Picture Show marks with a historical review in photographs.

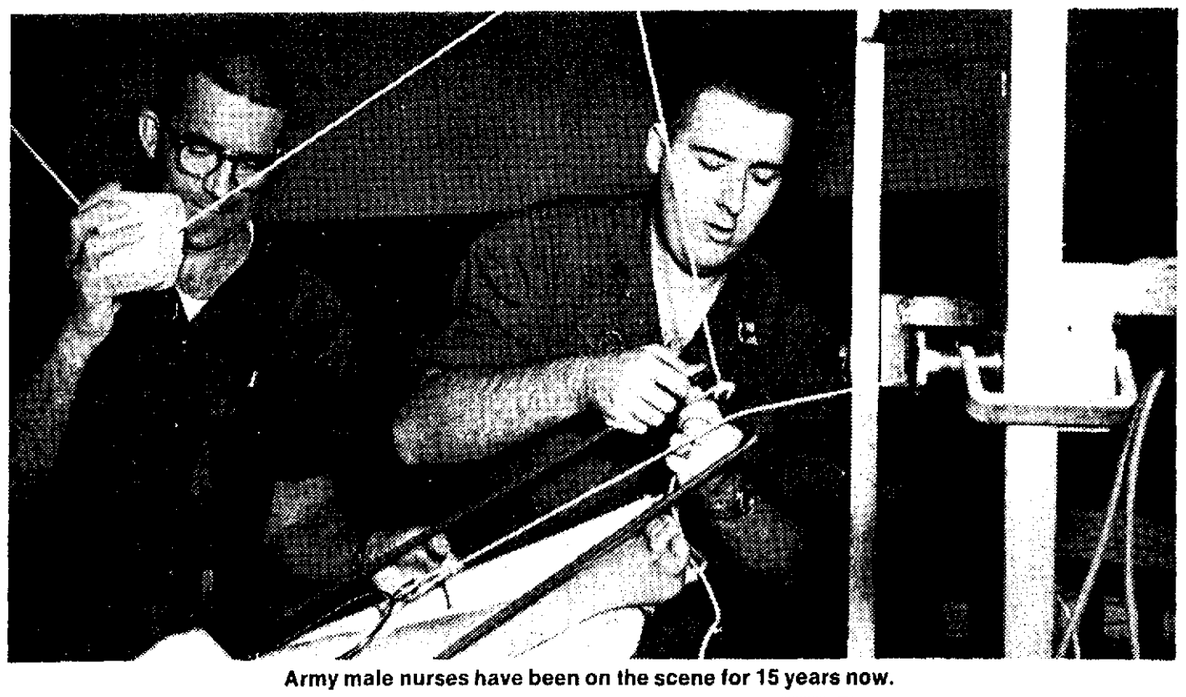

When the Corps was established in 1901 it was the first women's component of the U.S. Armed Forces, as well as being the first military nurse corps in the world. It came into being as a result of the efforts of civilian nurses who were employed by the Army to care for the sick and wounded during the Spanish-American War. Ever since, the all-officer corps has had as its mission the providing of safe and effective nursing services to military personnel and their families in peace and in war. Today 4,700 Army nurses serve at home and abroad—and some 1,060 of them are men, a development dating from 1955.

Opening lead—♠ 5

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South analyzes the five of spades lead as fourth best of a four or five-card suit. He can't be sure at trick one, but he knows enough to hold up his ace until the third lead of the suit.

South should proceed on the assumption that West does hold five spades. This means that he does not want to let West gain the lead again if he can help it.

South's longest suit is clubs and he sees no reason not to start by working on it. He plays out his ace and king and is delighted to see the queen drop. Now he can count five clubs plus three aces for an eight trick total.

All else being equal South would go to dummy and work on a diamond finesse. He has four diamonds in dummy and there is a potential long suit trick.

All else isn't equal, South doesn't need three extra diamond tricks or even two extra diamond tricks for his contract. He needs one extra trick somewhere and he can be sure of that trick if he goes after hearts and keeps West out of the lead.

He leads his jack of hearts and finesses. If East gets tricky and lets the jack hold, South should not repeat the finesse. They don't always work the second time and South is trying for his contract, not for overtricks.

Big newsy button-up to knit — this handsome big needle sweater, worked in a chevron pattern, can be knit for sizes 12 up to 20.

Knit Now for Sweater Weather

By JUDY LOVE

Hear this, ladies: It's button-up sweater time.

The cool weather forecast for fall brings big sweater news—and that's literal and figurative. Literally, sweaters are right for every occasion this fall. Figuratively, you big girls will like this fashion winner we've found for you. Today's cuddly warm button-up features an easy, good looking vertical chevron pattern that's repeated in the body, up the sleeves and on the wide collar, as well.

The sweater is knit on No. 15 needles, so you know it'll work as fast as your fingers can fly. The gauge is 14 sts for 5 ins, and 7 rows should equal 2 ins. That's fast work, of course. (Directions call for No. 15 needles; but your gauge is what really determines the needle size; if your gauge is off, you need either larger or smaller needles, see gauge instructions. Unless you knit to exact gauge, your size will be off.)

You start this sweater on a Size J (9) hook; the collar is edged with the same fast sc stitch for a custom finished look. The collar, by the way, is a handsome six inches that lays flat or can be turned up and tied underneath with a bright scarf or ascot.

This button front coat sweater is a winner, and is knit in Bear Brand or Fleisher's Gigantic or Botany Colossal. Here's the really big sweater news about it: Directions are available for sizes 12 to 14 and right up to 18 to 20. You'll need 21 or 26 of the 2 oz. skeins, depending on the size. At today's prices, that's a big bargain for a beautiful handknit sweater.

Clear, easy-to-follow directions for this button front, big needle, big news sweater are available from your local newspaper. Simply send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o your local paper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N. Y. 10021. Ask for Stitchin' Time leaflet S325. Include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

Yes, ladies, handknits are definitely fashion-right and a must for all your wardrobes this fall. But, just because it's a handknit doesn't make it a custom look, finished knit.

Many of you have written asking why your finished creations look "not-quite-finished." The not-quite-finished look may be due to the loose, not-neat vertical edge of a cardigan sweater, for example. The remedy for this looseness is a simple one. Just work one or two rows of slip-stitch in crochet at the very edge, on the wrong side of the work and your vertical edges will be straight and even.

A simple, easy-to-do final touch, but a necessary one to get the quality, look of craftsmanship which all of us admire so much and want to see in our own knitted and crocheted garments.

GOT THE 'THING'

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — The "thing" that was bothering Fulton Stephens' livestock and poultry near Sumner in Lamar County turned out to be a 42-pound javelina.

The animals are strangers in these parts. But Stephens proved his point by killing the javelina when it invaded his barnyard. Wildlife officials said it must have been transported here then escaped from its owners.

THE GENERATION RAP

TEN ON THE BIKE VS FOUR ON THE FLOOR

Dear Sue and Helen:

I hope you both agree with me, but even ONE in my corner may help convince my mother that ten-speed bikes are "there." If they weren't the greatest things since tape decks, how come bicycle shops can't keep up with the orders?

Mom ought to feel lucky because any other year, a 17-year-old would want "four on the floor" while I'll settle for "ten on the bar"—and by the time my name comes up on a waiting list, I may even have the money saved.

But, instead, Mom makes noises about my old-fashioned banana-seated "compact" being "in perfect shape." Sure! I'd look like a baby trundling along after my friends on their big wheels—besides being left behind when they peel out. And having to walk-it up hills.

Everybody knows single-speed doesn't make it any more, so how do you convince a square parent? (Who says, "It's a fad, and there are better ways to spend your money.")—TEN SPEED OR BUST

SUE'S VIEWS:

Dear Ten-Speed:

. Funny you asked, because my Mom also has the freaky idea that TWO speeds on a bike are enough: Stop and Go.

How to educate mothers?

1. Slowly. (Fathers usually come around first because they dig on gears and miles-per-hour and "long, lean lines."

2. Earn your own money. And don't forget the extras like a good chain and lock.

3. Work on awareness. Say, "Hey, look, another 10-speed!"—constantly—so she'll see how many own them.

4. (This only goes if she's a writer): Suggest she do a story on ten-speeds because look how popular they are. Or, if you're in English Comp, do your own theme and have her check it. (More awareness, see?)

5. Don't forget pollution, ecology and far out things like that. When you're 10-speeding cross-country (well then, on bike trails or suburb pavement) you aren't burning dirty old gas that costs expensive old money. Besides, you can use your wheels at college next year, where EVERYBODY rides.

6. Keep pushing "good clean healthy fun." (There's no back seat on a bike.)

7. You may never convince a female-type mother that all ten speeds are necessary, but if you get her past the single-speed hang-up (mine now accepts three—with reservations) your father can take it from there. Good luck!—SUE

P.S. Here's Mom on an equal-time kick: She's mainly a cool head but 10 speed bikes unseat her.

HELEN'S STATIC

Dear Ten-speed:

I went down fighting—still think 10 speeds on a bike are as necessary as 10 speeds on a clothes washer—seven of which are status symbols. But, as Sue wrote, educate your reactionary mother past the "single" hang up and the rest is only a matter of time (until you earn the money and your father swings the vote).

So. . .our daughter's bedroom now has a new occupant: a streamlined monstrosity she all but chains to her wrist each night, because new ten-speeds are on every heister's "most wanted" list, and "Nobody leaves one in the garage, Mom!!"

What's a mother's eye view? DIM!

1. Those ram's-horn handlebars dip so low you ride horizontal—which they tell me lessens wind resistance, but who's going that fast?

2. Hand brakes for front and back wheels yet? Anybody past 40 knows a foot on the pedal is better—and you don't sail over the handlebars when you squeeze too hard.

3. Who needs a bunch of complicated wires and cables leading to mechanisms you'd rather forget? MY speeds are Slow and Slower.

4. Those tall, skinny wheels are circular stilts: insecurity in the round!

5. And the seat! Scarcely wider than a dull razor blade, it lacks something—like a pound of plastic foam padding.

6. Of course you find no back fender or chain guard ("Don't be dingy, Mother, they add weight!") so if you hit a puddle it's mud up your back, and if you omit the ankle clip, goodbye pants! And never try riding barefoot: ridged metal pedals ("Rubber Guards? How juvenile, Mom!") are Indian nail-bed torture, junior grade.

7. Should you fall, make sure the bike lands on top of you—softly. YOUR bruises will heal, but gears are CRITICAL!

All of which, for you teenagers and cross-country cyclists, may add up to great sport, but I'll stay with my old spavined single-speeder, thank you. It gets me there, and I needn't worry about chains or locks because no respectable thief would consider it.

Nowadays, they steal only 10-speeds!

P.S. Have fun.--HELEN

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Side whiskers, now called sideburns, originally were called burnsides, according to The World Almanac. They got their name from Union General Burnside, who wore them during the Civil War. In popular usage, the two syllables became transposed.

Jerry Stars for Muscular Dystrophy

By JOYCE GABRIEL

NEW YORK — (NEA) — For the fifth consecutive Labor Day weekend, the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America is sponsoring its annual fund-raising telethon. Last year, the 20-hour show, starting on Sunday night and ending the following Monday night, raised more than $5 million.

The funds are distributed to various MDAA projects. Much of the money goes to research: The organization has a research institute in New York, fondly referred to by staff members as "the house that Jerry built." (Jerry Lewis is national chairman of the association and veteran host and supporter of the telethon). In addition, MDAA sponsors research grants to scientists and doctors all over the world.

Caring for a dystrophy victim is expensive and MDAA helps families financially by providing wheel chairs, leg braces, free clinics (there are 94 across the country) and summer camps for dystrophic children.

The telethon started as a local program in 1953, with Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin (they were still a team) hosting. It remained a local show until 1959, when the telethon was discontinued.

Bob Ross, Executive Director of MDAA, explains: "The management at the time thought telethons no longer interested audiences and they decided to drop it as a fund-raising device."

It wasn't until seven years later, in 1966, that the telethon was revived at Ross' suggestion.

"The management still thought it was a bad idea, but they told me, 'Have your failure.'"

It turned out, however, to be a success. Ross got Lewis to do the show, gave it a more sophisticated appeal than it had had before, and MDAA discovered, to its delight, that a whole new generation, which had never seen a telethon before, was enthusiastic about it.

JERRY LEWIS, with 1971 Muscular Dystrophy poster child Scotty Swift, above, brought the telethon back to life as a fund-raising technique in 1966.

In 1966, the telethon raised more than a million dollars—a first in TV telethons—and at the time it was still a local show out of New York.

In 1968, the telethon was aired over four stations, increased that figure to 20 in 1969, had 65 stations in 1970 and has 115 stations slated for the 1971 show.

Each station is approached individually with a telethon proposal. Hughes Television has coordinated the stations into a "network." Each local station has its own talent presentations and its own emcee to announce area contributions. These stations "cut away" from the national broadcast for no more than 10 minutes out of every hour.

For MDAA, the telethon raises millions. For TV stations, it provides solid entertainment—some 100 entertainers will perform this year—over an otherwise dull TV weekend. Most TV experts contend that Labor Day weekend is bad programing time commercially because so many people are away. Nevertheless, the telethon manages to capture millions of viewers across the country.

Ross credits Lewis for the success of the telethons. There are approximately 38,000 people, most of them volunteers, who work on the telethon, and yet Ross says that without Lewis it would not be the success that it is.

"It's Jerry who makes a national show possible," said Ross. "People are attracted to the telethon because of him. There's not another performer who could do the show Jerry does. He has the dynamism, the desire and the dedication to see it through.

At the end of last year's telethon, Lewis was so exhausted (he had been up over 40 hours preparing and performing) and so excited at having topped the five million mark, that he choked up and couldn't finish his last song.

That same Lewis, 15 minutes after last year's telethon ended, was planning this year's show and was insisting that he could do 24 hours instead of the usual 20.

Pledge figures look great on the totals board, but how much of the money pledged is actually collected?

According to MDAA figures, 99.7 per cent of the pledges are redeemed, with 85 per cent of the contributions coming in within a week to 10 days after the telethon has aired.

Many contributions arrive with a personal letter to Jerry Lewis attached. One girl, summing up telethon viewers' response to him, wrote: "Smile Jerry Lewis. God loves you."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

This 'Health' Diet Causes Malnutrition

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My cousin has been a fruitarian for nearly a year. All she eats is fruits and nuts, no vitamin pills or supplements and no medicine and she's not religious. Her skin is breaking out, she has lost a lot of weight, hasn't much energy and sleeps a lot. She's in her 20s. If she marries, will her children be normal? She eats no salt and drinks bottled water. She says germs can't hold onto anything in her body as she is getting to be mucus-free. She is following a book she read and I read it, too, and think the writer is a fanatic. He says that, with his diet, the menses will disappear. I think the whole woman will disappear.

Dear Reader—Your cousin's health is in serious danger. So is the health of anyone else who follows such a ridiculous diet. Fruits are fine foods, but only as part of the diet. The body requires a significant amount of protein intake regularly—that means meat, fish, poultry, or vegetables high in protein, like beans, or cereals, milk (low-fat) and milk products like uncreamed cottage cheese and egg whites.

There are a certain number of cells destroyed by the body each day and they must be replaced, using proteins as building blocks. Such a diet as you describe is also deficient in iron, which a woman of that age needs badly, and calcium. No wonder she is tired all the time and has lost weight. She is suffering from malnutrition. I would doubt that her children would be abnormal because, if she persists in this diet, she may not be able to have any. I think she should see a reputable doctor as soon as possible. She is already in trouble.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Can you explain to me the effects on my two-month-old baby's health if I have two candles burning day and night in my bedroom? I am thinking that the carbon monoxide from them may pollute the air.

Dear Reader—The biggest danger is the fire hazard. Carbon monoxide is caused by incomplete combustion or burning of fuels like occurs from gasoline engines. Ordinary burning of wood or the fire from your candle do not generate carbon monoxide. The burning process converts fuel like wood, or wax in this case, to carbon dioxide and water. Too much carbon dioxide, too, can be dangerous but you would have to burn a lot of fuel and have an airtight room for that to become a problem. So, just avoid any possibility of a fire and you will be all right. Incidentally, just in case you are burning candles for religious reasons, I'd like to warn you that some religious trinkets are highly flammable.

Try Spinach And Sauteed Mushrooms

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Looking for a different taste combination to go with those steaks, chicken or ribs? Try Fresh Spinach with Sauteed Mushrooms.

FRESH SPINACH WITH SAUTEED MUSHROOMS

- 2 pounds fresh spinach
- ¼ cup chopped fresh onions
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- ½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

Wash spinach, chop or break coarsely and set aside. Saute onions in 1 tablespoon butter. Add chopped spinach. Cover and cook 10 minutes or only until spinach has wilted and is tender. In separate skillet saute mushrooms in remaining 1 tablespoon butter and lemon juice. Add to spinach with salt, sugar and black pepper. Garnish with additional sauteed sliced mushrooms if desired. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Chinook Winds Bring Out Soaring Eagles

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer

CASPER, Wyo. (AP) — When the warm Chinook winds blow in from the southwest, sweeping the snow from the rolling sage and grass lands, the December skies above Immigrant Gap are filled with soaring eagles.

In years past, upwards of 50 bald and golden eagles migrating south could be seen daily funneling into the gap nine miles west of this valley town.

But this winter, says Dr. Oliver Scott, "I wouldn't be surprised if our eagles are down to half." Poison baits and gunfire have killed scores, perhaps hundreds, of the rare birds.

The eagles are only one species of wildlife caught in a crossfire between ranchers and conservationists over the government's death-to-predators program.

The Sierra Club and Defenders of Wildlife charged in a lawsuit that the widespread campaign against predators throughout the Western rangelands also has killed black-footed ferrets, ringtails, kit foxes, wolverines, California condors, rough-legged hawks and burrowing owls.

Like the bald and golden eagles, the species are innocent victims of a campaign to prevent crop and livestock destruction by killing such prey-seekers as coyotes, bears, mountain lions, bobcats and black-tailed prairie dogs.

The animals are killed in a variety of ways. Chunks of meat treated with deadly compound 1080 (sodium fluoracetate) are placed at strategic points. Lard-coated strychnine pellets are scattered over thousands of acres.

Thousands of cyanide guns or "coyote getters" have been placed in the ground, primed to fire a charge of deadly cyanide gas into the mouth of any animal that triggers it. Traps and gunfire also are used.

One helicopter pilot testified before a Senate subcommittee that more than 700 bald and golden eagles were gunned down from his aircraft in skies over Colorado and Wyoming. But such instances of gunfire deaths are believed minimal.

The number of "target animals" killed by poison is tremendous. The Division of Wildlife Services, the branch of the Interior Department charged with carrying out the predator-control program, reported in 1970 a known kill of 73,093 coyotes, 8,403 bobcts, 121 mountain lions and 11 gray wolves.

In addition, 403 bears were either killed or trapped in snares and removed to remote areas. And 210,774 acres were treated with poison to destroy colonies of prairie dogs.

Skunks, badgers and porcupines also fall victim to the poison baits. And an unknown number of animals eat the poison and wander off to die in areas where they are never discovered.

It is the poison that enrages conservationists.

"We don't like it. We don't like it at all," says Scott, a Casper physician, rancher and president of the Murie Audubon Society. "We think it should be species-specific."

Scott, who helped lead investigators into rugged Jackson Canyon where the first mass eagle kills were reported this spring, adds: "I don't know of any poison that is specific."

Two suits seeking to halt predator-control programs have been filed against the Interior Department. And the Environmental Protection Agency has been asked to restrict interstate shipment of the poisons.

So far, no action has been taken on any of the three legal maneuvers.

Ironically, the environmentalists' efforts to halt poisoning programs may be indirectly responsible for the recent eagle slaughter by poisoning.

Several years ago the government modified its poison campaign in response to critics. As a result, says John Burke, a Wyoming woolgrower, predators began to increase.

"And for the first time we had ranchers going out on their own and using poison," said Burke, who is chairman of the predatorcontrol committee of the Wyoming Woolgrowers Association.

In one instance at Jackson Canyon antelope carcasses were laced with thallium to kill marauding coyotes, but more than 20 eagles died from eating the poisoned meat.

The Interior Department is seeking new ways to control predators at its Denver Research Center, including methods to develop birth controls to reduce predator litters, and repellants that would discourage predators from going near lambs.

Meanwhile, Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton has assigned a task force of wildlife experts to review the control program.

Panthers in 8-2 Victory Over Bobcats

By BILL MOORE

Surprise, Surprise, Surprise. That's exactly what happened to the Hope Bobcats last night at Ashdown.

Although starting out like an offensive power machine, things got clogged up and Ashdown's Panthers came on strong enough to get the only points they needed.

With Ashdown kicking off, Hope started with the ball at their own 19 yard line. Biting off chunks of yardage, the Cats moved right on down the field toward the goal line.

Aided with two passes from quarterback Tommy Frazier to halfback Ray Wheelington, the Bobcats pushed to the Panther two yard line. However, on fourth down the correct yardage just didn't come up and the ball was turned over to Ashdown.

Quickly the Panthers hit a first down at their own 23 yard line, but four plays later in punt formation, a bad snap to kicker Burl Foster sent the ball flying to the endzone. Although Foster reached the ball first, Mike Downs, with some help from Lynn Norton, immediately dropped him for the two point safety with 43 seconds left in the quarter.

Both teams then exchanged the ball, until Ashdown started moving with 9:09 left in the half.

Three plays moved Ashdown to the Bobcat 12 yard line, before defensive end Wade Harris broke through to drop Scotty Thrash for a five yard loss. After the Panthers called a time out with 6:40 left, they moved right on in for the score with quarterback Mike Carroll sneaking over from the one.

Carroll faked a run and found end Jerry Ward in the corner of the end zone for the two point play and an 8-2 lead with 5:30 left in the half.

Both teams traded field position for the rest of the half.

During the second half, neither team could mount a score, although Ashdown moved as close as the nine yard line before Carroll was thrown for an 18 yard loss by Rodney Steele and Norton, killing the drive.

Penalties and interceptions plagued the Cats the rest of the way.

Hope's next game will be against Prescott next Friday in Hammons Stadium.

High School Football Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Add the Pine Bluff Zebras to the list of Robert Lee Steward believers.

Steward, the highly regarded Forrest City running back, scored two touchdowns and racked up 132 yards rushing as the Class AAA Mustangs opened the high school football season Friday night with a 12-7 upset of sixth-ranked Pine Bluff.

The much ballyhooed match between second - ranked Little Rock Hall and third-ranked Little Rock Parkview turned out to be a battle of mistakes. Hall made fewer errors and won 14-6.

Larry Thompson scored twice to pace fourth-ranked Hot Springs to a 26-9 victory over Malvern. Seventh-ranked Jonesboro battled Batesville to a 0-0 tie. Eighth-ranked Little Rock McClellan scored in the final minutes to edge Conway 29-21. Ninth - ranked Rogers, a AA power, intercepted four passes and held Class AAA Springdale to 41 yards in a 20-0 victory over the Bulldogs.

Top-ranked Fort Smith Northside beat 10th-ranked Stuttgart 14-12 Thursday night and fifth-ranked Little Rock Catholic was idle. El Dorado, tied for 10th, did not play.

Steward, who gained more than 1,300 yards last year and scored 24 touchdowns, scored Friday night on runs of two and 12 yards. Steward's second touchdown came with 11:01 left in the fourth quarter and put the Mustangs ahead to stay.

Forrest City coach Bill Shimek says the 190-pound Steward is the best running back in east Arkansas. He'll get no argument in Pine Bluff.

Hall scored on a 68-yard interception return by John Velasco and a 24-yard drive following a Parkview fumble. The Patriots moved 12 yards for their touchdown after recovering a fumbled punt.

Thompson scored on runs of three and 10 yards to pace the Trojans who finished the 1970 season as the state champion. Malvern led 9-7 at the half, but Sam Stathakis' one-yard run in the third period put Hot Springs ahead to stay.

Jonesboro, which blanked nine opponents last year, escaped with a tie Friday night after Batesville's Geral Casteel missed two field goals in the fourth quarter. Linebacker Mike Etter partially blocked the first attempt and the second attempt fell short.

David Hines' 63-yard punt return carried to the Conway four with 1:45 remaining and set up a two-yard touchdown burst by Virgil Pearcy that carried McClellan past Conway. Conway had a chance to score in the final seconds but was stymied twice from the one yard line as time expired.

Rogers had little trouble with Springdale. Jim Casto's 31-yard pass to Bruce Shaner in the first quarter was all the points the Mountaineers needed.

Graylon McFadden raced 47 yards for a third-quarter touchdown that lifted Class AAAA North Little Rock to a 14-7 victory over Class AAA Fort Smith Southside. McFadden's touchdown came less than two minutes deep in the third quarter and broke a 7-7 tie.

North Little Rock Northeast, another Class AAAA team, scored a 14-7 victory over another AAA team, the Benton Panthers. A one-yard touchdown plunge by Hanniver Hardin with 8:36 left in the third period was the difference.

Little Rock Central, also AAAA, avenged a 1970 loss with a 24-6 victory over Marianna.

In a Class AAA-East conference game, Helena held Blytheville to minus 23 yards rushing and whipped the Chicks 21-0. Ken Fielder, David Dilley and Tommy Fridell scored on short runs for the Indians.

Two AAA teams whipped AA opponents.

Mark McCutcheon sailed around right end for 10 yards and a fourth-quarter touchdown that gave Fayetteville a 13-6 victory over Bentonville. McCutcheon's touchdown came with 6:22 left in the game and broke a 6-6 tie.

Texarkana's stout defense permitted Arkadelphia only five yards rushing as the Razorbacks beat the Badgers 15-0. Ronnie Hickerson scored one touchdown on a seven-yard run and Graylen Wyatt scored the other on a one-yard plunge.

In other action, West Memphis dropped a 14-0 decision to Memphis White Station. West Memphis managed only two first downs and 37 yards total offense.

How Top Ten Fared

1. FS Northside beat Stuttgart 14-12.
2. LR Hall beat LR Parkview 14-6.
3. LR Parkview lost to LR Hall 14-6.
4. Hot Springs beat Malvern 26-9.
5. LR Catholic was idle.
6. Pine Bluff lost to Forrest City 12-7.
7. Jonesboro tied Batesville 0-0.
8. LR McClellan beat Conway 29-21.
9. Rogers beat Springdale 20-0.
10. (tie) Stuttgart lost to FS Northside 14-12.

El Dorado was idle.

BUCKS BOUNCE

The Milwaukee Bucks set six National Basketball Association records last season, in addition to five individual records established by Buck stars Oscar Robertson and Lew Alcindor. Alcindor holds the NBA regular season and play-off record for best lifetime field goal percentage while Robertson has the most lifetime assists and most career All-Star game points and assists.

But First Woman Pro Is 'Retired'

By ED HAYES

TAMPA, Fla. — (NEA) — —Former professional football player Pat Palinkas is not pregnant.

"There have been stories published here that I'm going to have a baby," said Mrs. Stephen Palinkas, who last August titillated the sporting world (plus a few million television viewers outside the athletic sphere) by becoming the first female to play pro football, "but the stories are untrue.

"What I said was that I wanted to get ready to have children. Stephen wants me to be a mother."

For this noble reason, and because her team, the Orlando Panthers, have been ignobly suspended by the Atlantic Coast Football League because of a wobbly financial structure, the new career of the elementary school teacher has been shelved.

If the Panthers had been able to suit up this year, would she have considered playing once more?

"Oh . . . I'd have to think about that . . ." she replied. In the next breath she said: "Yes. Yes, I'd do it again. It's been wonderful. I don't know what normalcy is any more.

"You know, I don't hold anything against Wally Florence, either, even though he was quite malicious in his thinking."

Wally Florence is the well-traveled defensive lineman, playing for the Bridgeport Jets, who creamed Pat Palinkas in her first appearance.

"I was creamed," were her exact words.

"I wanted to knock her bleeping head off," were the nearly exact words of the snarling Florence as he trotted off the Tangerine Bowl field.

Mrs. Palinkas, understandably, overlooked the vein of humor in the historic fact that a guy named Florence became the first man to wallop a woman on the football battlefield.

"I'm just glad I still have all my bones together," she said. "That's what I'm thankful for.

"No, I don't have any dreams about it, or nightmares, or anything like that, I really don't. It happened so fast, all of it. I can't believe it happened."

Paul Massey, Orlando coach last year, now residing in Las Vegas, refused to admit that it was sheer gimmickry to hire the 27-year-old woman for the exclusive function of holding the football for her place-kicking husband. "She was good," he said in a level voice. "A real gutty kid."

Yet he confessed that the national attention did not hurt the league or his club. "The ACFL got more national exposure in one month than it did altogether in the past," he said.

Appearing in three preseason games, Pat Palinkas successfully held the football for seven extra points, six with her husband, the other while California's Ron Miller was booting.

However, by the time the regular ACFL season was in motion, she was more valuable to the club in a public relations role. She appeared on four national television shows in New York and starred in some commercials. Massey handled the bookings.

Meanwhile, Massey also gave Steve Palinkas his unconditional release. There was sadness in the Palinkas household but the little woman (5-7, 135 pounds) carried on. Mrs. Palinkas continued making personal appearances but she also had the teaching job to keep up and did not perform on the football field again. Her jersey, No. 3, was ceremoniously retired.

Contrary to the usual public assumption, nobody got rich on the fanciful flight of Pat Palinkas into the violent all-male world. Patricia's only badge of affluence is the new air-conditioning in her old Karmann Ghia. While Steve is selling Buicks in Tampa, she attends summer classes at the University of South Florida.

PRO CHARTS

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

National Conference: Eastern Division

16—PHILADELPHIA EAGLES

PROSPECTUS—Woe the bedraggled Eagles. They're trying harder, but that's only good for last place. Jerry Williams got a year's grace in efforts to revive franchise that's had four straight losing seasons, a turbulent front office situation and unbelievably bad luck in trades and draft picks. It's not going to get better immediately.

Offense

PASSING—Near chaos, with defection of Greg Barton to Canada. He was supposed to replace traded Norm Snead. Then Rick Arrington sprained knee. That left only Pete Liske, who wasn't impressive at Denver. Even dipped into minors for King Corcoran. There'll have to be a trade. Rating—D.

RUNNING—One case where injuries had beneficial effect. Sidelining of Tom Woodeschick, Harry Jones year ago opened alley for Cyril Pinder, Lee Bouggess to carry load. Which they did admirably. Now they're locked in and make a potent pair. With the others still around for support. Rating—B+.

RECEIVING—Gary Ballman's not what you want in tight end because he's not big, but he stays ahead of Steve Zabel, who even got look-see as linebacker this summer. Wide receivers Ben Hawkins, Harold Jackson are zippy enough, but they're not much help when ball isn't coming their way. Rating—B.

LINE—Just so-so. Look for Wade Key, rookie right tackle in '70, to develop into good one. Joe Carollo's been around long enough (10 years) to know all the tricks. High draftee Henry Allison might offer help inside, where Dick Hart, Jim Skaggs flank Mike Evans. Not overly reassuring group for quarterback's ease of mind. Rating—C.

Defense

LINE—There's spot ready-made for Richard Harris, one of prize animals of most recent college group. He's tackle type so it could require some shifting around because Gary Pettigrew, Ernie Calloway were the young huskies who operated in O.K. fashion inside last year. Mel Tom is an experienced end to round out quartet. Get pretty good pass rush from them. Rating—B.

LINEBACKING—As a character, Tim Rossovich created own mold. Also made admirable shift from defensive end to middle linebacker. With Ron Porter working on his right, Adrian Young on his left, Eagles have one phase of defense on which they can build future. They're all in 25 age range. And have zesty approach to football. Rating—B+.

SECONDARY—Mixture of experience (Al Nelson, Nate Ramsey) and young blood (Ray Jones, Bill Bradley). The vets are the kind that could be supplanted by some speed boys, if any pop up among rookie contingent. Or maybe Leroy Keyes (remember him?) can get healthy enough to give Eagles some return on investment in him. Rating—B-.

KICKING—Happy Feller of Texas is getting good shot to supplant disappointing Mark Moseley on field goals. That would leave punting to left-footed Bill Bradley. Rating—B.

Prediction

A club in a quandary and not enough help in sight. Fifth in NFL East.

FORMER PRO FOOTBALL PLAYER Pat Palinkas, who held for placekicker husband Steve with the Orlando Panthers of the Atlantic Coast Football League last year, has retired from the gridiron and returned to the waffle iron. But she insists she is not pregnant.
